

12 days of Christmas – Charlie's Story

I started as a volunteer adviser just under 2 and a half years ago, after my disability meant I was unable to continue on my previous career path. Since then I haven't looked back.

In less than a year, I was successful in my application for a paid position and have recently become a full-time member of staff. Every day is different and you really feel like you make a difference. I've now started training to become a legal executive. All of this came from volunteering just one day a week.
